It makes sense !

The collection « We are Family »

"60% of primate species now threatened with extinction, says major new study and 75% are declining in numbers. Without action, these numbers will grow and more species will disappear forever. This dismal situation is our fault. Primates are mainly threatened by losing their habitat when it is logged or converted into farms or ranches. They can also be hunted for meat, or to supply the illegal trade in pets and body parts. Road construction, oil and gas extraction, mining, pollution, disease and climate change all add to the list of threats, often in combination." Written by Jo Setchell Professor of Anthropology, Durham University published in the conversation.com.

The new 19 summer collection of Coqenpâte will try to sensibilize and educate about these species. We would like to share with you our concern and make our children aware of this poor situation.

After having supported IUCN-SOS initiative in Madagascar to save lemurs, having supported Rajako project from FNH (Fondation Nature et Homme), Coqenpâte engage its creations for PCGS (Big monkeys conservation program) together with Sabrina Krief French renown primatolog. She is studying chimpanzes for more than 20 years in Ouganda forest, in Sebitoli protected area precisely.

Coqenpate will during three years finance forest guards and educational program in the area, especially for young children.

We hope that these following products made in organic cotton, socially and environmentally friendly will convince people to commit with scientists and environment defender.

And maybe change their way of consuming in a more responsible way...
